

Final Performance of Understanding Archaeology and Food

Menu: Imagine all your grocery stores and restaurants are closed. Design a menu for your family from local ingredients. These ingredients can be from gathering wild plants, hunting, or fishing. They can also be from local farms, ranches, farmers markets, and/or local, personal, or community gardens. Remember to illustrate your menu to reflect your local environment and the foods you are serving. Your menu should answer the following questions for your food items:

1. Where will you get the food item?
2. What season is it available?
3. Will it be for breakfast, lunch, or dinner?
4. Is this a wild ingredient or one you can find in a local garden (personal or community), farms, ranches, and farmers markets?
5. Is this item something that would have been available in the past?

Menu Standards

- Content – we included all of the content required for the menu
- Writing – our writing is clear and concise, helps the reader understand the content, has correct spelling
- Design – we designed the content so that it is easy to understand and artistic

Presentation: You will present your menu to the class. After presenting your menu, you should answer the following questions:

1. How would your daily life change if you had to eat only foods on your menu?
2. How do you think your life would be in comparison to people in North America before modern agriculture? What would be similar? Different?

Presentation Standards

- Content – We presented all of the content required for the menu and answered the presentation questions. Content is clear and organized; uses appropriate facts and information.
- Presentation – We presented our information logically using facts and details to accentuate our ideas; used appropriate eye contact, adequate volume, and clear pronunciation.
